We have not begun looking at P4s at this point. We are working on compulsory attendance grade levels. We will look at P4's after Friday.

Hey there!

Is there any movement on the prek spots at Forest Park?

Thanks!

The only way he can drop is if another family with a P4 students moves in the zone and has an older sibling that attends Forest Park. At that time, he will drop to accommodate the sibling preference policy. This is the only language that should be afforded any parent. None the less, we have had only one family to move in the Forest Park zone with a sibling since your wife last checked and that moved Everette from 7 to 8 on the waiting list.

He did not receive a spot at Forest Park but was originally 10th on the waiting list. Today, she was informed that he had fallen to 36th. My question to you is how is this possible? Maybe I don't understand how your selection process works. I'm hoping you can enlighten me on that. I might add that every single relative that my grandson has lives in the Forest Park zone. My wife and I live across the street from the school. He not only didn't get his first choice but also not his second choice of Fair Park which he is twenty something on that list. I have major concerns about this situation. The entire family is strong supporters of public education. We want the very best opportunities for our grandson when it comes to his education. With seventy years of teaching between my wife and I we feel strongly about our ability of knowing how the education process should work. We certainly would not want to put him into a private school but with moving down on the list from 10th-36th we may not have a choice. Please help me understand this reversal in status. I eagerly await your response.
